PRONUNCIATION

GREEK AND LATIN PROPER NAMES.

PREFACE AND REMARKS.

THE following rules and observations relating to the pronunciation of Greek and Latin Proper Names are in general accordance with the principles of Walker; but as the system of notation used in this Dictionary is applied to these names in the Vocabulary, and as all the words are divided into syllables, some of his rules for their pronunciation are here omitted as unnecessary.

1. Greek and Latin names introduced into modern languages naturally acquire, in sound and rhythm, the main characteristics of the different languages which receive them. That which is chiefly attended to and sought after, in classical names, is the seat of the accent; and when the seat of the accent and the syllabication are determined, these names are pronounced, in the English language, according to the powers of the letters in common English words.

2. In Greek and Latin names the accent is always placed on either the second or the third syllable from the end of the word. In words of more than two syllables, if the penult is long in quantity, it is accented; if short, the antepenult receives the accent.

3. The vowel of the penult before x, z, j, or any two consonants except a mute followed by a liquid, as l or r, is long by position. In other cases its quantity must be determined by poetic usage, etymology, or the mode in which the word is written in Greek. The digraphs ch, ph, rh, and th are to be regarded as single consonants.

4. An accented vowel in the penultimate syllable, when followed by a single consonant, by j or z, or by a mute with l or r, has the long sound; as, A'jax, A'cra; otherwise it is short; as, Apĕl'les. This pronunciation, in cases like the first and the last of these examples, is so obvious that it has not been deemed necessary to include such words in the Vocabulary.

Exception.—Before gl and tl the vowel of the penult, unless it be u, has the short sound; as, Ægle (ĕg'le), Atlas (ăt'las).

5. The final e is always sounded; as in Bereni'ce. This remark, of course, does not apply to Anglicized forms; as, Pros'er-pine, for Proserpina.

6. In Greek and Latin names the letter g has its soft sound before the vowels e, i, y, and before the diphthongs æ and œ; but in most Scripture names it has its hard sound before these vowels.

7. The digraph ch in Greek and Latin names, and likewise in almost all Hebrew names, is sounded hard, like k.

8. Every final i, though unaccented, has its long open sound, as in Achi'vi. But when i, or its equivalent y, ends an unaccented first syllable of a word, it has in some cases its long sound, as in Bianor; in some it takes the indistinct sound of e, as in Cilicia; and in some it is difficult to determine which of these sounds is to be preferred, as there is a want of agreement with respect to them both among orthoepists and good speakers.

9. The termination es is pronounced like the English word ease; as, Achilles (a-kil'lēz).

10. The terminations aus and ous are always pronounced in two syllables; as, Men-e-la'us, Antin'o-us.

11. The termination eus in proper names which in Greek end in εύς, as Orpheus, Prometheus, is to be pronounced as one syllable, the eu being a diphthong. Walker, following Labbe, generally separates the vowels in pronunciation. But the diphthong is never resolved in Greek, and very rarely, if ever, in Latin poetry of the golden or the silver age. But in the termination eus in adjectives, eu is not a diphthong.

12. There is a class of proper names ending in ia which, in their classical pronunciation, have the accent on the penultimate; as, Alexandri'a, Cassandri'a, Deidami'a, Philadelphi'a, Samari'a, &c. The English analogy strongly favors the antepenultimate accent in the pronunciation of this class of words; and Walker countenances this accent in relation to a part of them, especially such as are much used in English and have consequently become in a measure Anglicized. The following words, namely, Alexandria, Philadelphia, and Samaria, are so much Anglicized that it would seem pedantic, in reading or speaking English, to pronounce them otherwise than with the antepenultimate accent. But such of these names as are scarcely at all Anglicized, as Antiochia, Deidamia, Laomedia, &c., may very properly be allowed to retain their classical accentuation.

13. There are some other classical names which have become more or less Anglicized, and which have, in consequence, had their pronunciation, in a greater or less degree, changed from the classical standard. Thus, Arius, the name of the celebrated heretic, is pronounced A'rius in English, though the penult is long in Greek; and the usage of the English poets has substituted Hype'rion for Hyperi'on.

Rules of Pronunciation referred to by Figures in the following Vocabulary.

RULE 1.—The consonants c, s, and t, immediately preceded by the accent, and standing before i, followed by another vowel, commonly have the sound of sh; as in Pho'cion (fō'she-ŭn), Ac'cius (ăk'she-ŭs), Al'sium (ăl'she-ŭm), Helve'tii (hel-vē'-she-ī).—C, following an accented syllable, has also the same sound before eu and yo, as in Cadu'ceus (ka-dū'she-ūs), Si''cyon (sĭsh'e-ŏn).

Exceptions.—T, when preceded by s or x, has its hard sound, as in Sestius, Sextius. When si or zi, immediately preceded by an accented vowel, is followed by a vowel, the s or z generally takes the sound of zh; as, Mæ'sia (mē'zhe-ă), Hesiod (hē'-zhe-ŏd), Ely''sium (e-lĭzh'e-ŭm), Saba'zius (sa-bā'-zhe-ŭs.) According to Walker, the words Asia, Sosia, and Theodosia are the only exceptions; but to these a few others should perhaps be added, as Lysias, Tysias.

X, ending an accented syllable, and standing before i, followed by a vowel, has the sound of ksh; as in Alex'ia (a-lĕk'she-a).

RULE 2.—In some proper names t preserves its true sound; as, Aetion, Amphictyon, Androtion, Eurytion, Gration, Harpocration, Hippotion, Iphition, Metion, Ornytion, Pallantion, Philistion, Polytion, Sotion, Stration, and a few others; but Hephæstion and Theodotion are Anglicized, the last syllable being pronounced like the last syllable in question, commotion. In the words Æsion, Dionysion, and Iasion, the s takes the sound of z, but not of zh.

RULE 3.—In words ending in eia, eii, eium, and eius, with the accent on the e, the i following the accent is to be understood as articulating the following vowel like y consonant; as, Elege'ia (el-e-jē'ya), Pompe'ii (pom-pē'yi), Pompe'ium (pom-pē'-yum), Pompe'ius (pom-pē'yus). The same rule also applies to words ending in ia, preceded by a or o, having the accent upon it, as Acha'ia (a-kā'ya), Lato'ia (la-tō'ya), and likewise to words having the accent on a vowel, followed by ia, though they may not end the word, as Ple'iades (plē'ya-dēz).

The digraph yi, followed by a vowel, generally represents the Greek diphthong υι, and forms but one syllable; as, Harpyia, pronounced Harpy'ya, or, as some prefer, Har-pwy'a; Ilithyia, pronounced in four syllables, Il-i-thy'ya, not I-lith-y-i'a, as in Walker.

RULE 4.—The diphthongs æ and œ, ending a syllable with the accent on it, are pronounced like long e, as in Cæ'sar (sē'zar); but when followed by a consonant in the same syllable, like short e, as in Dæd'alus (dĕd'a-lŭs).

RULE 5.—In Greek and Latin words which begin with uncombinable consonants, the first letter is silent; thus, C in Cneus and Ctesiphon, M in Mneus, P in Psyche and Ptolemy, Ph in Phthia, and T in Tmolus, are not sounded.

RULE 6.—The termination eus in most Greek proper names corresponds to εύς, and is then to be pronounced in one syllable; as, Æ'geūs, Or'-pheūs, used as nouns; but Æ-gē'us, Or-phē'us, as adjectives.

GREEK AND LATIN PROPER NAMES.

The figures annexed to the words refer to the Six Rules of Pronunciation, on page 590. Thus, the figure 1, annexed to Acacius, refers to Rule 1, which shows that the word is pronounced Ā-kā′shē-ŭs.
The words in brackets are the preceding words Anglicized. Thus, the Latin word Adrianus is changed, in English, into Adrian.

SCRIPTURE PROPER NAMES.

PREFACE.

In the preparation of the following Vocabulary, the design has been to insert Proper Names found in the Bible, including the Apocrypha. It also embraces a few words which are not proper names, but which, being found in the English Bible, seem to require a notice in a pronouncing dictionary.

With respect to pronunciation, Walker has been followed in relation to the words found in his Vocabulary; and when there is a diversity, his pronunciation is placed first, except in a very few instances in which he has gone counter to acknowledged principles; and such deviations from him, by other orthoepists, as are deemed worthy of attention, are noted. There are some cases in which the mode adopted by other authorities is doubtless to be preferred to that of Walker.

The pronunciation of but a small part of Scripture Proper Names can be determined by classical authority; and the pronunciation of these names is, therefore, more conformed to English analogy than that of the Greek and Latin Proper Names.

RULES OF PRONUNCIATION.

1. One of the principal differences between the pronunciation of the Hebrew proper names and that of the Greek and Latin relates to the sound of the letter g, which in Greek and Latin names is soft before e, i, and y; as, Gellius, Gippius, Gyas; but in Hebrew names it is hard; as, Gerizim, Gideon; except Bethphage, which, by passing through the Greek of the New Testament, has become conformed to the ordinary English rule relating to words from the Greek.

2. The digraph ch, in Hebrew names, is sounded hard, like k; as, Chebar, Enoch; but the words Rachel, Cherubim, also Cherub (an angel), are Anglicized in their pronunciation, the ch being sounded like ch in cheer; but Cherub, a city, is pronounced ke'rub.

3. Every final i, forming a distinct syllable, though unaccented, is pronounced with its long sound, as, A'ī, Aris'a-ī.

4. The two vowels ai are sometimes pronounced in one syllable; as, Mor'de-cai; and sometimes in two; as, Hag'ga-i.

5. The two vowels ia, when preceded by another vowel, are sometimes pronounced in one syllable, and sometimes in two. When pronounced in one syllable, the i is sounded like y consonant; as, Benaiah (be-na'yah), Isaiah (i-sa'yah). When pronounced in two syllables, the accent is on the i; as, Ad-a-ī'ah.

6. The diphthong ei is pronounced, according to Walker, like ee, Ceilan (sē'lan). When ei is followed by a vowel, the i is usually sounded like y consonant; as, Iphideiah (if-e-dē'yah), Sameius (samē'yus).

7. Gentile names ending in ene, ine, and ite, with their plurals, being Anglicized, are pronounced like English formatives; as, Nazarene', Philis'tine, Gad'ites, Am'monite, Ish'maëlites; except Magdale'ne. Words of this class ending in ite have the accent on the same syllable as their primitives.

8. The consonants c, s, and t, before ia and iu, preceded by the accent, in a number of Scripture names, take the sound of sh; as, Cappadocia, Asia, Galatia, Tertius. See Pronunciation of Greek and Latin Proper Names, Rule 1.

SCRIPTURE PROPER NAMES.

The following Vocabulary exhibits the pronunciation of Walker, together with numerous deviations from him by the following orthoepists, namely, Oliver, Perry, Smart, Carr, and Taylor. Except in the few cases in which Walker is expressly cited, his pronunciation stands first.

The abbreviation C. stands for Carr, O. for Oliver, P. for Perry, Sm. for Smart, T. for Taylor, and W. for Walker.

The figures appended to certain words refer to the Rules of Pronunciation on the preceding page.

CHRISTIAN NAMES OF MEN AND WOMEN,

WITH

THEIR SIGNIFICATION, AND AN INDICATION OF THE LANGUAGES FROM WHICH THEY ARE DERIVED.

REMARKS.

The etymology and signification of a considerable number of these and other proper names are very uncertain, and etymologists differ much in tracing their origin and interpreting their meaning; in a great many cases the explanations offered are purely conjectural.

In many cases of doubtful etymology the authority which has been followed is mentioned.

MODERN GEOGRAPHICAL NAMES.

REMARKS.

The pronunciation of geographical names is a very difficult branch of orthoepy. These names pertain to all parts of the globe; their vernacular or native pronunciation is regulated or affected by every variety of language; and it would be scarcely possible to represent in any instance the exact native pronunciation by any combination of English letters. There are minor shades and qualities of tone which no alphabet can ever take note of.

There are a great many names respecting the pronunciation of which it is difficult to determine how far the English analogy should be allowed to prevail over the analogy of the languages to which the words respectively belong. Most of such authorities as exist embrace but a small part of the words of this class; and there is also much disagreement among orthoepists with respect to the pronunciation of such of these names as they undertake to pronounce.

With regard to the geographical names which pertain to the countries in which the English language is spoken, including the British empire in Europe, the United States, and the British provinces generally, their pronunciation is conformed, for the most part, to the analogy of the English language. In addition to these, geographical names which belong to other parts of the globe, but which have become Anglicized by having changed their native form and assumed an English orthography, are also conformed to the general principles of English pronunciation. The most common geographical names, such as those which relate to the great divisions of the globe, the names of the countries, kingdoms, states, principal cities, &c., are differently written as well as differently pronounced in different languages. The following table exhibits a few examples of this diversity by way of illustration:

English.	French.	German.	Spanish.	Italian.
Africa,	Afrique,	Afrika,	Africa,	Affrica.
Europe,	Europe,	Europa,	Europa,	Europa.
America,	Amérique,	Amerika,	América,	America.
England,	Angleterre,	England,	Inglaterra,	Inghilterra.
Spain,	Espagne,	Spanien,	España,	Spagna.
Germany,	Allemagne,	Deutschland,	Alemania,	Germania.
Austria,	Autriche,	Oesterreich,	Austria,	Austria.
Sweden,	Suède,	Schweden,	Suecia,	Svezia.
London,	Londres,	London,	Lóndres,	Londra.
Leghorn,	Livourne,	Livorno,	Liorna,	Livorno.

There can be no doubt but that geographical names, which assume such different forms in different languages, should be pronounced differently by the inhabitants of different countries and in accordance with the analogies of their respective languages. All the common geographical names, such as are familiar to all intelligent persons, have become more or less Anglicized, and their pronunciation is more or less conformed to the English analogy. Many of these words may be considered as perfectly Anglicized, and they are accordingly pronounced as common English words; but there are many with regard to which it is difficult to determine how far, in pronouncing them, the English analogy should be allowed to prevail over that of the language to which the words belong.

With respect to the class of words which are partially Anglicized, there is a great diversity in the manner of pronouncing them. Some respectable speakers incline to pronounce them, for the most part, according to the English analogy, while others aspire to pronounce them as they are pronounced in the several languages to which they appertain; and there are many cases in which it is difficult to determine which is to be the more approved, the English or the foreign method. A person conversant with foreign languages will be likely to pronounce such words in the foreign manner; while a mere English scholar may be naturally expected, and may be permitted, to incline more strongly to the English mode. It may be often desirable to know what the native mode of pronouncing such words is, though it may not be advisable, in common use, to adopt it. The present tendency is unquestionably toward at least an approximate conformity to the best vernacular standards, especially in the case of European proper names.

Proper names are more subject to a corrupt pronunciation, or one which is not conformed to the orthography, than common names. A considerable number of the geographical names pertaining to England are pronounced very differently from what their orthography indicates; as, for example, Chertsey and Cirencester, commonly pronounced ches'se and sis'e-ter. Americans are somewhat less inclined to deviate from orthography, in the pronunciation of some words, than the English are. Berwick and Warwick, for example, which are pronounced in England ber'ik and war'ik, are often pronounced in the United States as they are spelt.

The following vocabulary was first prepared as an appendage to an edition of the Comprehensive Dictionary which was published in 1835. In preparing it, use was made of a great variety of sources of information, one of the most considerable of which, in the later editions of this Dictionary, was Lippincott's "Pronouncing Gazetteer of the World."

PRONUNCIATION OF SEVERAL EUROPEAN LANGUAGES.

The following rules respecting the pronunciation of certain letters in the principal modern languages of Continental Europe may be of some use in relation to the pronunciation of names pertaining to the several countries where these languages are spoken, and which are not included in the present Vocabulary. Yet it may be advisable for a mere English scholar to make but a partial application of them in practice.

VOWELS.

A.—The vowel a, in situations in which the analogy of the English language would naturally give it the sound of long a, has, in most of the languages of the Continent of Europe, what is called the Italian sound,—that is, the sound of a in far and farther. In other situations its sound approaches nearly to its short English sound, as in man, fat.

E.—In these languages the sound of the vowel e at the end of an accented syllable is generally the same as that of the English long a in fate, name. In other situations it has the sound of the English short e, as in met, men, or of e in there, where.

I.—The long sound of i in these languages is the same as in the English word marine, being the same as the English long sound of e in mete, seen. The short sound is the same as its English short sound, as in pin.

O.—The vowel o has the same sounds that it has in English in the words note, not, and nor.

U.—The vowel u in most of these languages has the same sound that it has in English in the word rule, being the same as oo in fool, moon, and when short it has the sound of u in bull, or of oo in good. The sound of u in the French language, and also in the Dutch, has no equivalent sound in English; and it can be learned only by oral instruction. It may be regarded as intermediate between the sound of long e and oo, partaking of both.

Y.—The vowel y has, in most of these languages, the same sound as i,—that is, of long e, as in me; but in the Dutch language (in which it is now written ij) it has the sound of the English long i, as in pine. In Danish and Swedish, it is like the French and Dutch u.

DIPHTHONGS.

AE or Ä.—The sound of the diphthong ae, in Dutch, is like the English sound of a in far; in German, the sound of ae or ä is like that of the English long a, as in fate.

AI.—The sound of the diphthong ai, in French, is like that of the English long a, as in fate; in the other languages, like that of the English long i, as in pine.

AU and EAU.—The diphthong au and the triphthong eau, in French, have the sound of the English long o, as in note; as, Chaumont (shō-mōng'), Beauvais (bō-vā'). In German, Dutch, Danish, Italian, Spanish, and Portuguese, the diphthong au has nearly the English sound of ow in now; as, Austerlitz (ôûs'tẹr-lĭts). The German diphthong äu, or aeu, has a sound like that of the English diphthong oi in toil; as, Stäudlin (stöĭt'lĭn).

EI and EY.—The diphthong ei, in French, sounds like the English long a in fate. In German, the diphthongs ei and ey have a sound similar to the English sound of long i, as in pine; as, Heĭ'del-berg.

EU.—The French diphthong eu has a sound similar to the English sound of e in her, or u in fur. The German diphthong eu has a sound similar to that of the English diphthong oi in toil; as, Neustadt (nöĭ'stät).

IE.—The diphthong ie, in French, German, Dutch, &c., has the sound of the English long e, as in mete; as, Wiē'land.

OE or Ö.—The sound of the German, Danish, and Swedish diphthong oe or ö resembles that of the French eu. It has no equivalent sound in English, and is not easily explained. It may be conceived as intermediate between the long English sounds of a and o, and resulting from an attempt to utter them simultaneously. It may be approximately represented in English by ĕh, as in the name of Goethe or Göthe (pronounced ḡĕh'tā).

OO.—The diphthong oo, in German, Dutch, and Danish, has the sound of oo in the English word door, or of o in note.

OU.—The French diphthong ou has the sound of the English oo in tool; as, Tŏu-lôusé' (tô-lôz').

UE or Ü.—The sound of the German, Dutch, and Danish diphthong ue or ü is like that of the French u.

CONSONANTS.

The sounds of most of the consonants, in the Continental languages, are the same as in English. Some of the principal exceptions are the following:

B.—The sound of b, in German, at the end of a syllable, is like that of the English p; in Spanish, between two vowels, similar to v.

C.—The sound of c, in German, before e, i, and y, is like that of ts in English; in Italian, before e and i, like that of ch in the English word chill; in Spanish, before e and i, like that of th in thin.

D.—The sound of d, in German and Dutch, at the end of a syllable, is like that of t in English; in Danish and Spanish, between two vowels or at the end of a syllable, like that of th in this.

G.—The sound of g in French, before e, i, and y, is like that of zh in English, or of s in pleasure; in Spanish, before e and i, the same as the Spanish j; in Italian, before e and i, like that of g in the English word gem, or j in jet; in Dutch, its sound is that of a strongly aspirated h; in German, at the beginning of words, it is hard, like g in get; at the end of a syllable, or between vowels, it has a peculiar sound intermediate between those of consonant y and g in get; following n, it combines with it in a nasal sound, as in English; and in words ending in ngen, it is thrown back on the penultimate syllable; as, Hech'ing-en.

H.—This letter is mute in French, Spanish, and Italian; in Portuguese, when it follows l or n, it takes the sound of consonant y, or serves as a sign that the l has a liquid sound; as, Minho (mēn'yō).

J.—The sound of j, in French and Portuguese, is like that of zh in English; in Spanish, it is like that of h strongly aspirated; in Italian, and also in Hungarian when not preceded by d, g, or t, it is like the long English e in me; in the remaining languages, it is like that of consonant y.

M.—This letter, in French, when preceded by a vowel, and followed by any other consonant except m, serves to mark the vowel as nasal. It is represented in English by ng.

N.—The letter n, in French, when preceded by a vowel, and followed by any other consonant except n, also serves as a sign that the preceding vowel is nasal; in Spanish, ñ has a liquid sound, like that of n in the English word name, blended with the sound of consonant y.

V.—The sound of v in German is the same as that of f in English.

W.—The sound of w in the German and Dutch languages is similar to that of v in English.

X.—The sound of x in Spanish is like that of h strongly aspirated, being the same as that of the Spanish j, and also of g before e and i; in Portuguese it is like sh in the English word shall.

Z.—The sound of z in German, and most generally in Italian, is like that of ts in English; in Spanish, like th in the English word thin; zz in Italian, like ts.

DIGRAPHS.

CH.—The sound of the digraph ch in French and Portuguese is the same as the English sh, or of ch in chaise; in Spanish, the same as ch in the English word chill; in Italian, as in words from the ancient languages (Hebrew, Greek, and Latin), like that of k. In German and Dutch it has a hard, guttural sound, not easily represented in English, but resembling that of h strongly aspirated. It is represented in this Vocabulary, as it is in others, by the letter k.

GL.—This digraph in Italian blends the sounds of l and consonant y.

GN.—This digraph in French and Italian sounds like the Spanish ñ, or like the letters ni in the English word onion.

LL.—The sound of ll in Spanish is like that of gl in Italian, or that of the letters lli in the English word million.

SC.—This digraph in Italian, before e and i, is sounded like sh in the English word shell.

SCH.—The sound of sch in German is the same as that of sh in the English word shell.

TH.—The digraph th in the several languages has the sound of t; as, Theiss (tīs).

ACCENT.

In the French language there is no recognized accented syllable, every vowel (the mute or obscure e only excepted) receiving a full and distinct utterance; but in English representations of the pronunciation of French words the last syllable is generally marked as having an accent. The same is true of Hungarian words. In the Dutch, German, Danish, and Swedish languages the principal accent falls upon the radical syllable of a word, and in general will naturally be given correctly by an English reader. Italian words and words ending in a vowel in Spanish and Portuguese are generally accented on the penultimate syllable; but there are numerous exceptions, especially in Italian. Spanish and Portuguese words ending in a consonant are mostly accented on the last syllable. The seat of the accent in Polish words is always the penultimate syllable. Russian words are often accented on the last syllable; but in this respect there is much irregularity, and in our pronunciation of them they are often conformed to the analogy of English words.

PRONUNCIATION OF THE NAMES

DISTINGUISHED MEN OF MODERN TIMES.

This list contains only such names of distinguished men of modern times as are of difficult or uncertain pronunciation. Only a small number of English or American names is here given.

The same difficulties that relate to the pronunciation of geographical names attend also that of the names of men of different countries; and the same general principles are to be applied to the pronunciation of both classes of names.

The names of some distinguished foreigners are Anglicized in their pronunciation, differing much from that given to them in their native country.

See Remarks on the Pronunciation of several European Languages prefixed to the Pronunciation of Geographical Names.

☞ Some of the asteroids were formerly designated by emblematic signs similar to those which are used for the larger planets. The mode of representing them by a circle enclosing the number indicating the order of their discovery is the one generally adopted at the present day. The first four asteroids, however, are still occasionally designated by the following characters:

⚳, or ⚳ Ceres. ⚴ Pallas. ⚵ Juno. ⚶ Vesta.

THE ZODIAC.

Spring signs.
- ♈ Aries, the Ram.
- ♉ Taurus, the Bull.
- ♊ Gemini, the Twins.

Summer signs.
- ♋ Cancer, the Crab.
- ♌ Leo, the Lion.
- ♍ Virgo, the Virgin.

Autumn signs.
- ♎ Libra, the Balance.
- ♏ Scorpio, the Scorpion.
- ♐ Sagittarius, the Archer.

Winter signs.
- ♑ Capricornus, the Goat.
- ♒ Aquarius, the Waterman.
- ♓ Pisces, the Fishes.

- ☌ Conjunction, i.e., in the same degree.
- ☍ Opposition, 180 degrees.
- ⚹ Sextile, 60 degrees.
- □ Quartile, 90 degrees.
- △ Trine, 120 degrees.
- ☊ Dragon's Head, or Ascending Node.
- ☋ Dragon's Tail, or Descending Node.

BOTANICAL.

* An asterisk prefixed to a name indicates that there is a good description at the reference given to the work.

† A dagger, in such cases, implies some doubt or uncertainty.

! An exclamation point denotes that an authentic specimen has been seen, from the author named.

? A mark of interrogation indicates doubt as to the correctness of genus, species, &c., according as it is placed after the name of the one or the other.

☉, ○, or ①	Annual.	♂	Male.
♂, ☉☉, or ②	Biennial.	♀	Female.
♃ or △	Perennial.	♂—♀	Monœcious, or the male and female on one plant.
♄, or ℨ	Shrub.	♂ : ♀	Diœcious, or the male and female on different plants.
☿	Hermaphrodite.	00, or ∞	Indefinite in number.

COMMERCIAL.

A 1, The designation of a first-class vessel, the letter denoting the character of the hull for build and sea-worthiness, and the figure that she is well found in rigging, gear, &c.

£ (Latin libra). A pound sterling.

℔ (Latin libra). A pound weight.

$ Dollars.

☞ Various explanations have been given of the origin of this mark. One is, that it is an imitation of the scroll and pillars on Spanish coins; another, that it is a modification of the figure 8, denoting a "piece of eight" (eight reals), a Spanish coin of the value of a dollar.

/ Shillings; as $4/_6 = 4$s. 6d.

@ At or to; as, Wood @ $4 per cord; Oats 47 @ 48c. per bushel.

℔ Per; as, Rice 4c. ℔ ℔.

% Per cent.; as, Commission at $2\frac{1}{2}$ % = $3.38.

$+$ plus, or more, denotes that the quantity before which it is placed is to be added; as, $a + b$; $3 + 4$.

$-$ minus, or less, denotes that the quantity before which it is placed is to be subtracted; as, $a - b$; $3 - 2$.

$\times$ into, denotes, when placed between two quantities, that they are to be multipled together; as, $a \times b$; 3×6.

☞ Multiplication may also be indicated by placing a point between the factors; as, $a \,.\, b$; $2 \,.\, 4 \,.\, 8$. When the quantities to be multiplied together are represented by letters, the sign may be altogether omitted; as, abc; xy.

$\div$, or : divided by, denotes, when placed between two quantities, that the one on the left is to be divided by the one on the right; as, $a \div b$; $8 \div 4$; $a : b$.

☞ Division is also indicated by making the dividend the numerator and the divisor the denominator of a fraction,—the quantities taking the place of the dots; as, $\frac{a}{b}$; $\frac{8}{4}$. It is also indicated thus, $a \,|\, b$.

$\pm$ plus, or minus; as, $a \pm b$; $\sqrt{a^2} = \pm a$.

$\sim$ denotes the difference between two quantities, without implying which is to be subtracted from the other; as, $a \sim b$.

$-$: denotes the difference or excess.

$\propto$ denotes that one quantity varies as another; as, $a \propto \frac{1}{b}$, a varies as $\frac{1}{b}$.

$\sqrt{}$ radical sign, denotes, when no number is written over the sign, that the square root is to be taken; as, $\sqrt{a}$; $\sqrt{9}$.

☞ The degree of the root is indicated by a number written over the sign $\sqrt{}$, which is called the index of the root; as, $\sqrt[3]{a}$, the cube or third root of a, &c. The symbol $\sqrt{}$ is a modification of the letter r, which stood for radix, or root. The root of a quantity is also indicated by a fractional exponent; as, $a^{\frac{1}{2}}$, the square root of a; $a^{\frac{1}{4}}$, the fourth root of a, &c.

$-$ vinculum,
$[\,]$, $\{\,\}$, brackets,
$(\,)$ parenthesis,
$|$ bar,

indicate that the quantities enclosed, or separated from other quantities, by them, are to be considered together, or as one quantity; as, $(a + b)\, x$; $\overline{x - y} \times b$; $+ \frac{a}{b}|x$.

Σ denotes that the sum is to be taken.

☞ The symbol Σ is used in algebra to denote that the sum of several quantities of the same nature as that to which the symbol is prefixed is to be taken; but in the Calculus it is commonly used to denote the sum of the finite differences of a function.

f, F, ϕ, functional symbols. A functional symbol denotes that two or more quantities vary together in accordance with some mathematical law; as, $y = f(x)$, denoting that y is a function of x, or that there is a general relation of dependency of value between y and x.

☞ The symbols used to denote functions are generally the letter f, with accents if necessary, F, and ϕ, ψ, π, &c.

= sign of equality, denotes that the two quantities between which it is placed are equal; as, $a + b = x - y$; $8 + 4 = 5 + 7$.

> sign of inequality, denotes that the quantity placed at the opening is greater than the one at the vertex, and is read greater than; as, $a > b$, i.e., a greater than b.

< sign of inequality, denotes that the quantity at the vertex is less than the one at the opening, and is read less than; as, $b < a$, i.e., b less than a.

⊏ greater than; as, $a \sqsubset b$, i.e., a greater than b.

⊐ less than; as, $a \sqsupset b$, i.e., a less than b.

÷ geometrical proportion; as, $\div a : b : c : d$.

: :: : : signs used in proportion; as, 3 : 5 :: 6 : 10, which is read, 3 is to 5 as 6 is to 10; $a : b :: c : d$.

∴ hence; consequently; therefore.

∵ because.

∠ denotes an angle; as, ∠ A, or ∠ B A C; which is read, the angle A, or the angle B A C.

△ denotes a triangle; as, △ B C D; which is read, the triangle B C D.

∟ denotes a right angle; as, ∟ B, or ∟ A B C.

□ denotes a square; as, □ A B C D.

▭ denotes a rectangle; as, ▭ A B C D.

○ denotes a circle, or 360°.

=○= equivalent to, denotes equivalency; as, $\overline{A\ B} =○= B\ D \times B\ C$.

∥ denotes parallelism.

⊥ denotes a perpendicular.

$\int$ denotes that an integration is to be performed; as, $\int dx$.

☞ This symbol is a modification of the letter s, which originally stood for the word summa, or sum.

$\int^m$ denotes that several successive integrations are to be performed, m denoting the number of integrations.

$\int_a^b$ denotes a definite integral taken from the value a of the variable to the value b of the variable.

d, δ, D, Δ, L, are variously used to denote differences, differentials, derivatives, or variations.

π denotes the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter, which is 3.14159265....&c. :—also the circumference of a circle whose diameter is unity:—also the semicircumference of a circle whose radius is unity. When radius = 1, $\pi = 180°$.

e denotes the base of the Napierian system of logarithms, which is 2.71828182845.....

M denotes the modulus of any system of logarithms.

☞ In the common system, M denotes 0.434294482...&c.

∞ denotes an infinitely large quantity, or a quantity greater than any assignable quantity.

0 denotes naught, nothing, or zero:—an infinitesimal, or a quantity less than an assignable quantity.

g denotes the space described during the first second by a falling body, which is about $16\frac{1}{12}$ feet.

ϵ denotes a residual.

° denotes degrees of arc; as, 30°, which is read 30 degrees.

′ denotes minutes of arc; as, 30° 12′, which is read 30 degrees, 12 minutes.

″ denotes seconds of arc; as, 30° 12′ 10″, which is read 30 degrees, 12 minutes, 10 seconds.

☞ The accents ′, ″, ‴, &c., are also used, when several quantities of the same kind are involved in an investigation, to designate different quantities by the same letter differently accented; as, a′, a″, a‴, &c.

MEDICAL.

℞ (Recipe), take.

☞ This symbol was originally the sign ♃ of Jupiter, and was placed at the top of a formula to propitiate the king of the gods, that the compound might act favorably.

℈ a scruple; ℈ss, half a scruple; ℈i, one scruple; ℈iss, one scruple and a half; ℈ij, two scruples, &c.

ʒ a drachm; ʒss, half a drachm; ʒi, one drachm; ʒiss, one drachm and a half; ʒij, two drachms, &c.

℥ an ounce; ℥ss, half an ounce; ℥i, one ounce; ℥iss, one ounce and a half; ℥ij, two ounces, &c.

lb a pound.
♏ a minim, or drop.
fʒ a fluid drachm.
fʒ a fluid ounce.
O, or 0 (Octarius), a pint.
āā (ἀνά), of each.

MISCELLANEOUS.

&, &c. And.—&c. (Et cætera.) And the rest; and so forth.

4to, or 4°. Quarto, four leaves, or eight pages, to a sheet.

8vo, or 8°. Octavo, eight leaves, or sixteen pages, to a sheet.

12mo, or 12°. Duodecimo, twelve leaves, or twenty-four pages, to a sheet.

16mo, or 16°. Sexto-decimo, sixteen leaves, or thirty-two pages, to a sheet.

18mo, or 18°. Octo-decimo, eighteen leaves, or thirty-six pages, to a sheet.

☞ When the sheets of a book are folded into more leaves and pages than those named above, the number of leaves is designated by the proper Arabic numerals with the termination mo, or o, affixed; thus, 24mo, or 24°, and 48mo, or 48°, denote books in which the sheets are folded into twenty-four and forty-eight leaves respectively. As there are no corresponding Latin names in use, such characters must be regarded as mere signs, and must be read as English words.

* Used in Roman Catholic church-books to divide each verse of a psalm into two parts, showing where the responses begin.

+ or ✝ Used in Roman Catholic service-books in those places of the prayers and benediction where the priest is to make the sign of the cross. It is also used in the briefs of the pope, and in the mandates of archbishops and bishops immediately before the subscription of their names.

× A sign by which persons who cannot write are accustomed to attest instruments, their names being added by those who can write; as— his JOHN × THOMAS. mark.

ȝ A common abbreviation for terminations, in use in the Middle Ages. Being in form somewhat like a z, it came to be represented among the early printers by that letter, and is still retained in the abbreviations oz. for ounce and viz. for videlicet.

Y, or y A corruption of the Anglo-Saxon character þ, or th, found in the antiquated abbreviations y^e for the, y^t for that, &c.

TYPOGRAPHICAL.

= drawn under words or letters which are to be printed in small capitals.

— Italics, if drawn under a word printed in Roman letters; Roman letters, if drawn under a word printed in Italics.

The following abbreviations are also used in the correction of proof:

tr. transpose.

l. c. lower case;—used when a letter or a word that should be printed in common letters has been printed in capitals or small capitals.

wf. wrong fount;—used when a character is not of the proper size or kind of type.

s. c., or s. caps., print in small capitals.

Qy., or ? Query;—used in any case of doubt.

ILLUSTRATION.

THOUGH several differing opinions exist as to the individual by whom the art of printing was first discovered; yet all authorities concur in admitting Peter Schoeffer to be the person who invented cast metal types, having learned the art ~~of~~ of cutting the letters from the Gutenbergs; he is also supposed to have been the first whoengraved on copper plates. The following testimony is preseved in the family, by Jo. Fred. Faustus, of Aschaffenburg: 'Peter Schoeffer, of Gernsheim, perceiving his master Fausts design, and being himself desirous ardently to improve the art, found out (by the good providence of God) the method of cutting (~~incidendi~~) the characters in a matrix, that the letters might easily be singly cast instead of bieng cut. He privately cut matrices for the whole alphabet: Faust was so pleased with the contrivance, that he promised Peter to give him his only daughter Christina in marriage, a promise which he soon after performed.

But there were many difficulties at first with these letters, as there had been before with wooden ones, the metal being too soft to support the force of the impression: but this defect was soon remedied, by mixing a substance with the metal which sufficiently hardened it.

and when he showed his master the letters cast from these matrices, Tē'thys. The wife of Oceanus, and the mother of rivers, and of about three thousand daughters, called Oceanides.

Tha-lī'a. One of the Graces.—Also, one of the Muses; the one who presided over festivals, and over comic and pastoral poetry.

Thē'mis. The daughter of Heaven and Earth, and the goddess of justice, who rewarded virtue and punished vice.

Thē'seŭs. The son of Ægeus and Æthra. He was king of Athens, was reckoned the next hero to Hercules, and was famous for slaying the Minotaur and conquering the Centaurs.

Thĭs'be. See PYRAMUS.

Tī-sĭph'o-nē. One of the three Furies.

Tī'tan. The brother of Saturn, and one of the giants who warred against heaven.

Tī-thō'nus. The son of Laomedon, loved by Aurora, and turned by her, in his old age, into a grasshopper.

Tĭt'y-ŭs. The son of Jupiter and Terra, a huge giant, whose body covered nine acres of land.

Trip-tŏl'e-mŭs. The son of Oceanus and Terra, taught husbandry by Ceres.

Trī'ton. The son of Neptune and Amphitrite, a powerful sea-god, and Neptune's trumpeter.

Trō'i-lŭs. The son of Priam and Hecuba, famed for his beauty. He was slain by Achilles. The story of his love for the unworthy Cressida was unknown to the ancients.

Tro-phō'ni-ŭs. A famous architect, son of Erginus. He was the builder of Apollo's temple at Delphi, and his cave at Lebadea was one of the celebrated oracles of Greece.

Tūr'nus. A king of the Rutuli, in Italy, killed by Æneas in single combat.

Tȳ'deŭs. The son of Œneus, king of Calydon, and conqueror of Eteocles, king of Thebes.

Tȳ'phon, or Ty-phō'eŭs. A giant or monster, on whom the island of Sicily was placed:—by some writers identified with Set, or Seth, a monstrous infernal divinity or demon of the Egyptian mythology.

U.

Ū-lȳs'sēs. King of Ithaca, husband of Penelope, and father of Telemachus. He was famed for his tact and craft, and for his practical wisdom. His adventures while returning to Ithaca, after the Trojan war, are the subject of Homer's Odyssey.

Ū-rā'ni-a. One of the Muses. She presided over astronomy.

Ū'ra-nŭs (Heaven). The most ancient of gods, the husband of Tellus, Terra, or the Earth, and father of Saturn. The same as the Cœlus or Cælus of the Latins.

V.

Vē'nus. One of the most celebrated deities of the ancients, the wife of Vulcan, the goddess of love and beauty, and the mistress of the graces and of pleasures.

Ver-tŭm'nus. A deity of the Romans, who presided over spring and orchards, and who was the lover of Pomona.

Vĕs'ta. The sister of Ceres and Juno, the goddess of fire, and the patroness of vestal virgins. Her mysteries were celebrated by virgins who kept lamps perpetually burning in her temple.

Vŭl'can. The god who presided over fire and workers in metal. He was the son of Jupiter and Juno, and the husband of Venus, and was so deformed that Jupiter kicked him out of heaven into the isle of Lemnos, where he set up a smith's shop and forged thunderbolts for his father. The Cyclops were his workmen.

Z.

Zĕph'y-rŭs. The son of Æolus and Aurora, who passionately loved the goddess Flora.—Also, a name for the west wind.

Zē'tēs and Cā-lā'a-īs. Sons of Boreas, king of Thrace. They attended the Argonauts, and drove the Harpies from Thrace.

Zeŭs. The principal divinity of the Greeks, corresponding to the Jupiter of the Romans.

TABLES

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

THE governments of the United States and England have endeavored to establish their several systems of Weights and Measures upon natural and invariable standards.

STANDARD OF WEIGHT.

The Standard Unit of Weight in the United States and Great Britain is the Troy pound, which is equal in weight to 22.2157 cubic inches of distilled water at 62° Fahrenheit, the barometer being at 30 inches. The Troy pound contains 5760 Troy grains; the pound avoirdupois is equal to 7000 of the same grains.

The standard units of linear, superficial, and solid measures of the United States and Great Britain are the same.

The Standard Unit of Length is the Yard. To determine the length of the yard, a pendulum vibrating seconds of mean time in a vacuum, at the level of the sea, in the latitude of London, is supposed to be divided into 391,393 equal parts; 10,000 of these parts are equal to one inch, and 360,000 of them to 36 inches, or the standard yard. In the United States the actual standard of length is a metallic scale procured by Congress for the United States coast survey, and kept in the Office of Weights and Measures at the Treasury Department in Washington.

STANDARD OF CAPACITY.

In the United States the Standard Unit of Liquid Measure is the Wine Gallon, containing 231 cubic inches and 8.3389 lbs. avoirdupois of distilled water at the temperature of its greatest density. The standard unit of Dry Measure is the Winchester bushel, containing 2150.42 cubic inches. The Winchester bushel is equivalent in capacity to a cylinder of which the internal diameter is 18½ inches, and its depth 8 inches, and which holds 77.6274 lbs. of distilled water at its maximum density. A gallon, Dry Measure, contains 268⅘ cubic inches.

The British standard measure, both for liquid and dry substances, is the Imperial Gallon, containing 277.274 cubic inches, or 10 lbs. avoirdupois of distilled water, when weighed at 62° Fahrenheit, with the barometer at 30 inches. The imperial bushel of eight gallons contains 2218.193 cubic inches.

WEIGHTS IN COMMON USE.

TROY WEIGHT.

Used in Weighing Gold, Silver, Jewelry, &c.

24 grains	= 1 pennyweight, marked	pwt.
20 pennyweights	= 1 ounce, "	oz.
240 pennyweights	= 12 ounces = 1 pound,	lb.

APOTHECARIES' WEIGHT.

Used in compounding Medicines.

20 grains	= 1 scruple, marked	℈
3 scruples	= 1 dram, "	ʒ
8 drams	= 1 ounce, "	℥
12 ounces	= 1 pound, "	℔

The pound and ounce in Troy and Apothecaries' Weights are alike; but the ounce is differently divided.

AVOIRDUPOIS WEIGHT.

Used in Commercial Transactions generally, and in weighing Metals, except Gold and Silver.

16 drams	= 1 ounce, marked	oz.
16 ounces	= 1 pound, "	lb.
14 pounds	= 1 stone.
25 pounds	= 1 quarter, "	qr.
4 quarters	= 1 hundred weight,	cwt.
20 hundred weight	= 1 ton.
100 pounds	= 1 quintal.
196 pounds	= 1 barrel flour, marked bbl.
200 pounds	= 1 barrel beef or pork.
280 pounds	= 1 barrel salt.
1 pound avoirdupois	= 7000 grains Troy.
144 pounds avoirdupois	= 175 pounds Troy.

At the Custom-House, and in some commercial transactions, 28 pounds are equal to 1 quarter, 112 pounds are equal to 1 cwt., and 2240 pounds are equal to 1 ton.

Net weight is the weight of the merchandise only, separate from the boxes, &c., containing it. Gross weight includes the weight of both merchandise and the boxes, &c., containing it.

DIAMOND WEIGHT.

Applied to the Weighing of Diamonds.

16	parts = 1	grain.
4	grains = 1	carat.
1	carat = 3⅛	grains Troy (nearly).
151½	carats = 1	ounce Troy.

The word carat is also used to express the fineness of gold, or the proportion of pure gold in the mass of metal. The mass is supposed to be divided into twenty-four parts or carats, and is said to be so many carats fine according to the number of 24th parts of pure gold contained in it.

MEASURES IN COMMON USE.

LINEAR OR LONG MEASURE.

This Measure is used in measuring Lines or Distances when Length only is considered.

3	barleycorns	= 1 inch, marked in.
3	inches	= 1 palm.
4	inches	= 1 hand.
9	inches	= 1 span.
12	inches	= 1 foot, marked ft.
1½	feet	= 1 cubit (Scripture).
3	feet	= 1 yard, marked yd.
6	feet	= 1 fathom.
16½	feet, or 5½ yards,	= 1 rod, marked rd.
40	rods	= 1 furlong, marked fur.
8	furlongs	= 1 statute mile, " m.
1⅔	statute miles	= 1 geographical mile.
3⅔	statute miles	= 1 league.
60	geographical miles	= 1 degree,—deg. or °.
69½	statute miles	= 1 equatorial degree (nearly).
360	degrees	= circumference of the earth.

Square or Surface Measure.

This Measure is used in measuring Surfaces, as Land, the Floors and Sides of Buildings, &c.

144 square inches = 1 square foot, marked sq. ft.
9 square feet = 1 square yard, " sq. yd.
272¼ square feet = 1 square rod, " sq. rd.
30¼ square yards = 1 square rod, " sq. rd.
40 square rods = 1 rood.
4 roods or 160 square rods = 1 acre, marked A.
640 acres = 1 sq. mile or 1 sq. section.
36 sq. sections = 1 township, 6 miles square.

Surveyor's Measure.

Used in the Measure of Distances and the Area of Surfaces.

7.92 inches = 1 link, marked l.
25 links = 1 rod.
100 links = 4 rods = 1 chain.
80 chains = 1 mile.
320 rods = 1 mile.
625 square links = 1 square rod.
16 square rods = 1 square chain.
10 square chains = 1 square acre.

Solid or Cubic Measure.

Used in measuring Solid Bodies and Spaces having Length, Breadth, and Thickness, or Depth; as timber, stone, wood, ships, &c.

1728 cubic inches = 1 cubic foot.
27 cubic feet = 1 cubic yard.
16 cubic feet = 1 cord foot of wood.
128 cubic feet, 8 cord feet } = 1 cord.
16½ cubic feet = 1 perch.
40 cubic feet = 1 ton, U. S. shipping.
42 cubic feet = 1 ton, English shipping.
40 feet of round timber, or 50 feet of hewn timber, } = 1 ton or load.

Cloth Measure.

Used by Dealers in Cloth, Carpets, Ribbons, &c.

2¼ inches = 1 nail.
9 inches = 4 nails = 1 quarter, marked qr.
27 inches = 3 quarters = 1 ell Flemish.
36 inches = 4 quarters = 1 yard.
45 inches = 5 quarters = 1 ell English.
54 inches = 6 quarters = 1 ell French.

Wine Measure.

Used in measuring Wine, Water, Cider, Oil, and most other Liquids.

4 gills = 1 pint (pt.) = 28⅞ cubic inches.
2 pints = 1 quart (qt.) = 57¾ cubic inches.
4 quarts = 1 gallon (gal.) = 231 cubic inches.
10 gallons = 1 anker.
31½ gallons = 1 barrel, marked bbl.
2 barrels = 63 gallons = 1 hogshead, " hhd.
4 barrels = 126 gallons = 1 pipe.
2 pipes = 252 gallons = 1 tun.
42 gallons = 1 tierce.
2 tierces = 84 gallons = 1 puncheon.

In some of the United States the capacity of the barrel for cider is fixed at thirty-two gallons.

Ale or Beer Measure.

Applicable to the measuring of Ale, Beer, and Milk.

2 pints = 1 quart = 70½ cubic inches.
4 quarts = 1 gallon = 282 cubic inches.
36 quarts = 9 gallons = 1 firkin.
2 firkins = 18 gallons = 1 kilderkin.
2 kilderkins = 36 gallons = 1 barrel.
3 kilderkins = 54 gallons = 1 hogshead.
4 kilderkins = 72 gallons = 1 puncheon.
6 kilderkins = 108 gallons = 1 butt.

Dry Measure.

Applicable to all Articles not liquid, bought and sold by Measure, such as Grain, Salt, Charcoal, &c.

2 pints = 1 quart = 67⅕ cubic inches.
4 quarts = 1 gallon = 268⅘ cubic inches.
8 quarts = 2 gallons = 1 peck, marked pk.
4 pecks = 1 bushel, marked bu.
8 bushels = 1 quarter.
36 bushels = 1 chaldron, marked ch.

An even or struck Winchester bushel is equal to 2150.42 cubic inches. A heaped Winchester bushel (the height of the cone being six inches above the brim) contains 2747.71 cubic inches, or somewhat more than five pecks, struck measure. The English or imperial standard gallon contains 277.274 cubic inches, and the imperial struck bushel 8 of those gallons, or 2218.192 cubic inches; 8 of these bushels make 1 English quarter, and 40 bushels, or 5 quarters, 1 wey.

Apothecaries' Measure.

60 minims (m) = 1 fluidrachm, marked f℥
8 fluidrachms = 1 fluidounce, " f℥
16 fluidounces = 1 pint, " O
8 pints = 1 gallon, " con.

Measure of Time.

Used in the Computation of Time.

60 seconds = 1 minute, marked min.
60 minutes = 1 hour, " h.
24 hours = 1 day, " d.
7 days = 1 week, " wk.
2 weeks = 1 fortnight.
4 weeks = 1 month, marked mo.
52 weeks, 1 day, and 6 hours } = 12 calendar months.
12 calendar months, or 365 days and 6 hours, } = 1 Julian year.

The time in which the earth, departing from one fixed star, returns again to the same star, is called the sidereal year, and is 365 days, 6 hours, 9 minutes, and 9⅚ seconds. The solar or tropical year consists of 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes, 49 7/10 seconds, and is the time in which the sun, departing from some point on the ecliptic, returns to the same point again.

Measure of Circular Motion.

Used in measuring Latitude, Longitude, &c.

60 seconds (″) = 1 minute, marked ′.
60 minutes = 1 degree, marked deg. or °.
30 degrees = 1 sign.
90 degrees = 1 quadrant or right angle.
12 signs, or 360 degrees, } = 1 great circle of the zodiac.

Denominations and Sizes of Paper.

Letter	10 × 15 in.	Royal	19 × 24 in.
Foolscap	14 × 17 "	Super royal	20 × 28 "
Comm'cial	15 × 19 "	Imperial	23 × 31 "
Demi	16 × 21 "	Elephant	23 × 28 "
Folio	17 × 22 "	Columbia	23 × 34 "
Medium	18 × 23 "	Atlas	26 × 33 "

A sheet folded once (2 leaves) is called Folio.
A sheet folded into 4 leaves, Quarto—4to.
" 8 " Octavo—8vo.
" 12 " Duodecimo—12mo.
" 16 " 16mo.
" 32 " 32mo.
24 sheets = 1 quire.
10½ quires = 1 token.
20 quires = 1 ream.
10 reams = 1 bale.

Numbers.

12 units = 1 dozen, marked doz.
20 units = 1 score.
144 units = 12 dozen = 1 gross.
12 gross = 1 great gross.
